

XX Congresso de Zootecnia

Zootec 2018

Portugal

”The challenge of increasing production of the animal sector while reducing its environmental footprint.”

Philippe Chemineau

www.zootec.apez.pt | geral@apez.pt | 912 239 527

Philippe Chemineau

Born 1952. French. Ingénieur Agronome. PhD animal reproduction

Director of Research in the French national institute for agricultural research (INRA)

Preceding positions :

- Team leader of the Neuroendocrine group of INRA in Nouzilly (1992-2000)
- Head of the joint research unit (Univ. Tours, CNRS) Physiology of Reproduction and Behavior (1996-2000)
- Head of the Animal Physiology & Livestock System INRA Division (2001-2009)
- Director of the INRA Delegation in charge of Scientific expertise, Foresight and Advanced studies in Paris (2010-2013)
- President of the European Federation of Animal Science (EAAP) in Roma (2012-2016)

Present positions :

- Member of the INRA Management Board in Paris (since 2010)
- Director of the INRA Directorate for Regional policy, Higher education & Europe in Paris (since 2013)

Author or co-author of 130 scientific publications in international peer-review journals classified in JCR.

Specialist of seasonality and of sustainable techniques for controlling reproduction in farm animals. He has worked on :

- Reproduction in sheep and goats (seasonality, biotechnologies)
- Male effect, photoperiodism
- Sexual neuroendocrinology